Speaking, Writing and Tweeting on Women’s Health Issues Around the Globe

Specific examples of our current activities include:

• Highlighting the ongoing sexual violence crisis in the Democratic Republic of the Congo by disseminating a statement倡导 involvement in collaboration with our global partners and other reproductive health leaders. The idea for this statement, directed at both the DRC government and the media, emerged from our 20th anniversary global symposium in Kinshasa.

• Encouraging infertility clinics and centers across the country to promote awareness of the Infertility Family Research Registry at Durham’s Dhinchcock Medical Center. Given how much more we need to learn about many AIFT practices — including the role of multiple egg extraction practices that attract many college-age women seeking to support their education — participation in this NIH-funded volunteer registry is vital.

• Blogging about the current “ war on women,” including in-depth coverage of the short-shed krat Wat women’s attempts to defend Planned Parenthood and the role of online activism. In addition, OBOS staff member June Tsang spoke at the United Women Against the War on Women rally at Boston City Hall Plaza in April, and Alysha Chintartti and Judy Norsigian contributed an article to The Boston Magazine titled, “ Can We Choose to Move Forward on Reproductive Justice? And How?”

• Developing more effective responses to the growing global reproductive “ tourism” industry, especially the engagement of low-income women in commercial surrogacy.

Our Bodies, Ourselves is the collaboration of women who work closely with us to substantially expand our impact.

• OBOS books, website, blog, newsletters, media outreach, public speaking, and use of social media all provide direct avenues for educating the public and offer sustained, in-depth engagement and support.

• Identify a select number of policy initiatives each year that enhance reproductive health and justice, provide direct avenues for educating the public and offer sustained, in-depth engagement and support.

• OBOS’s Public Voice and Action program uses the high profile of our Harper’s and other media appearances to bring attention to reproductive issues.

• OBOS's Books, Website, Blog, Newsletters, Media Outreach, Public Speaking, and Use of Social Media All Provide Direct Avenues for Educating the Public and Offer Sustained, In-depth Engagement and Support.

• OBOS's Public Voice and Action Program Uses the High Profile of Our Harper's and Other Media Appearances to Bring Attention to Reproductive Issues.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS's logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS's logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS's logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS's logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS's logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS's logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS's logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.

• OBOS's logo.

• OBOS Executive Director and co-founder Judy Norsigian (lower left) with Mark J. Perry, the founder of the Center for the Advancement of Human Reproduction. The two announced a second edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves this fall.

• OBOS Office.

• OBOS’s logo.
Help Send Our Bodies, Ourselves to College!

The new edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves continues to share rare and groundbreaking publishing with the world, and reaching audiences is a passionate mission. As a result, many young women and men with the book or the depth of its coverage is what you get—whether they’re enrolled in graduate study classes, where Our Bodies, Ourselves is an integral part of students’ curricula, and reaching audiences is a passionate mission.

In the coming weeks, OBOS will distribute a brochure, a copy of the second edition for websites and a copy of the third edition, to all of the available titles and the depth of its coverage is what you get—whether they’re enrolled in graduate study classes, where Our Bodies, Ourselves is an integral part of students’ curricula, and reaching audiences is a passionate mission.

Our Bodies, Ourselves..."Get informed! Stick it and click it!"

Get your bumper sticker!

Our Bodies, Ourselves in institutions interested in making identity and sexual orientation, and the politics of women’s sexuality.

From the latest information on contraception, safer sex, gender sexuality.

College-age students increasingly use online sources to learn about sexual and reproductive health, yet they are often compromise students’ health and well-being and also add more burden to our health service resources.

What can YOU do to fight back?

• Get your bumper sticker! Donate at least $10 to Our Bodies Ourselves and we’ll send you three bumper stickers in a visible and creative place. Take a picture, and share it on social media.

• Show your support! Our Bodies Ourselves launches new Our Bodies Ourselves Global Initiative Resources Based on Our Bodies Ourselves in 3 New Languages

The Our Bodies Ourselves Global Initiative is proud to showcase these three new cultural adaptations of Our Bodies, Ourselves in their unique linguistic environments.

Arabic - Al Mara wa Kayanaha

(Women and Their Bodies) The first book of its kind in Jordan and a visible and creative place. Take a picture, and share it on social media.

The book and related online materials were produced by Women and Their Bodies, a collaboration of Jewish and Palestinian women living in Israel. (It is also the name of the book translated to English.) Shortly, we hope to announce online access to excerpts from the new edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves.

What can YOU do to fight back?

• Get your bumper sticker! Donate at least $10 to Our Bodies Ourselves and we’ll send you three bumper stickers in a visible and creative place. Take a picture, and share it on social media.

• Show your support! Our Bodies Ourselves launches new Our Bodies Ourselves Global Initiative Resources Based on Our Bodies Ourselves in 3 New Languages

The Our Bodies Ourselves Global Initiative is proud to showcase these three new cultural adaptations of Our Bodies, Ourselves in their unique linguistic environments.

Arabic - Al Mara wa Kayanaha

(Women and Their Bodies) The first book of its kind in Jordan and a visible and creative place. Take a picture, and share it on social media.

The book and related online materials were produced by Women and Their Bodies, a collaboration of Jewish and Palestinian women living in Israel. (It is also the name of the book translated to English.) Shortly, we hope to announce online access to excerpts from the new edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves.

Bengali - Aamar Shastha, Aamar Satto

My Health, My Self) This book, developed in collaboration by women in India and Nepal's remote villages, focuses on sexual health and self-care. Co-editors are using the book as part of their outreach to 3,000 women and girls, and drawing upon an extensive grassroots and institutional network of NGOs, school libraries, village councilors, and women health providers and educators.

Nepali - Hamo Sharit, Hamo Him

(Our Body, Ourself) Our Bodies Ourselves in the United States and Canada

Norwegian - Our Bodies, Ourselves in 10 Languages

Our Bodies Ourselves in 10 Languages

Our Bodies Ourselves in 10 Languages

Meet the Newest Members of OBOS

OBOS kicked off spring with some new growth of its own. We are so pleased to welcome three new Board members and a part-time Development Coordinator. We hope you enjoy meeting them here.

Sue Rademaker, EdD, is a senior program officer at the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation and the former president of the National Academy of Family Medicine, a nonprofit professional organization with a membership of more than 450,000 family physicians. Tireless in her support and service work to encompase advocacy led her to OBOS. She looks forward to using her grant writing expertise, with great joy in securing federal funding, to help OBOS work in the area of women’s reproductive health.

Gina Wingold, MPH, MS, a professor of Public Affairs at Tufts University’s School of Public Health, Gender Studies and Women’s Health Institute, has been focused on women’s sexual and reproductive health. She has an MPH with a concentration in Maternal and Child Health, and her doctoral studies focused on HIV prevention among African American women.

Up to this point, Gina has been primarily involved with research and service, including several years as a volunteer for HIV/AIDS clinics in the San Francisco area, and as a Board member at AIDS Atlanta. Gina brings a wealth of understanding and experience to OBOS, and a part-time Development Coordinator. We hope you enjoy meeting them here.

Susan Ruderman, EdM, is President of Research and Evaluation, Inc. and a member of the National Academy of Medicine, a nonprofit professional organization with a membership of more than 800,000 health professionals. Tireless in her support and service work to encompase advocacy led her to OBOS. She looks forward to using her extensive knowledge of the intersection of science, policy, and advocacy and her role in social change to help bring Our Bodies Ourselves to new audiences.

Sally Whalen, OBOGI Program Director

OBOS launched a new initiative, Our Bodies, Ourselves Global Initiative Resources Based on Our Bodies Ourselves in 3 New Languages

Our Bodies, Ourselves is an integral part of students’ curricula, and reaching audiences is a passionate mission.

In the coming weeks, OBOS will distribute a brochure, a copy of the second edition for websites and a copy of the third edition, to all of the available titles and the depth of its coverage is what you get—whether they’re enrolled in graduate study classes, where Our Bodies, Ourselves is an integral part of students’ curricula, and reaching audiences is a passionate mission.
Welcome aboard!

Meet the Newest Members of OBOS

OBOS kicked off spring with some new growth of its own. We are so pleased to welcome three new board members and a part-time Coordination Director. We hope you enjoy meeting them here:

Susan Ruderman, Ed.L., is a renowned author, a board member of OBOS, and a professional with more than 25 years of experience in fundraising, and institutional and government relations, non-profit, and human services and animal welfare organizations. Susan has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health. She has an MPH with a concentration in Maternal and Child Health, and her doctoral studies focused on HIV prevention among African American women.

Up to this point, Gina has been primarily involved with research and service, including several years as a volunteer for HIV/AIDS clinics in the San Francisco area and as a Board member at AIDS Atlanta. Gina’s passion for championing the right to health and the well-being of women, girls, and young people led her to OBOS. She looks forward to being an active part of the Board and working to ensure that OBOS continues to grow its mission and impact in the important work of advancing women’s reproductive and sexual health and well-being.

Gina Wingood, MPH, PhD, is a professor at Harvard University’s School of Public Health. Gloria Feldt, MD, MSc, is a nationally known educator and women’s health advocate, and has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health.

Our Bodies, Ourselves

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Nepali - Himal Shrestha, Amaasr Sathe

This booklet, developed in collaboration by Sanlaap Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta (Our Bodies, Ourselves) and Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta, is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Obong - Azuma Shasha, Amaasr Sathe

The book is The Convergence of Science and Governance: a research-led book that examines the complex interactions between science, governance, and policy. It focuses on the importance of using the best available evidence and data to inform policy decisions and improve the health and well-being of populations.

Bengali - Amaasr Shasha, Amaasr Sathe

This booklet, developed in collaboration by Sanlaap Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta (Our Bodies, Ourselves) and Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta, is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Help Send Our Bodies, Ourselves to College!

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Meet the Newest Members of OBOS

OBOS kicked off spring with some new growth of its own. We are so pleased to welcome three new board members and a part-time Coordination Director. We hope you enjoy meeting them here:

Susan Ruderman, Ed.L., is a renowned author, a board member of OBOS, and a professional with more than 25 years of experience in fundraising, and institutional and government relations, non-profit, and human services and animal welfare organizations. Susan has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health. She has an MPH with a concentration in Maternal and Child Health, and her doctoral studies focused on HIV prevention among African American women.

Gina Wingood, MPH, PhD, is a professor at Harvard University’s School of Public Health. Gloria Feldt, MD, MSc, is a nationally known educator and women’s health advocate, and has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health.

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Nepali - Himal Shrestha, Amaasr Sathe

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Obong - Azuma Shasha, Amaasr Sathe

This booklet, developed in collaboration by Sanlaap Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta (Our Bodies, Ourselves) and Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta, is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Bengali - Amaasr Shasha, Amaasr Sathe

This booklet, developed in collaboration by Sanlaap Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta (Our Bodies, Ourselves) and Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta, is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Meet the Newest Members of OBOS

OBOS kicked off spring with some new growth of its own. We are so pleased to welcome three new board members and a part-time Coordination Director. We hope you enjoy meeting them here:

Susan Ruderman, Ed.L., is a renowned author, a board member of OBOS, and a professional with more than 25 years of experience in fundraising, and institutional and government relations, non-profit, and human services and animal welfare organizations. Susan has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health. She has an MPH with a concentration in Maternal and Child Health, and her doctoral studies focused on HIV prevention among African American women.

Gina Wingood, MPH, PhD, is a professor at Harvard University’s School of Public Health. Gloria Feldt, MD, MSc, is a nationally known educator and women’s health advocate, and has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health.

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Nepali - Himal Shrestha, Amaasr Sathe

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Obong - Azuma Shasha, Amaasr Sathe

This booklet, developed in collaboration by Sanlaap Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta (Our Bodies, Ourselves) and Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta, is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Bengali - Amaasr Shasha, Amaasr Sathe

This booklet, developed in collaboration by Sanlaap Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta (Our Bodies, Ourselves) and Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta, is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Meet the Newest Members of OBOS

OBOS kicked off spring with some new growth of its own. We are so pleased to welcome three new board members and a part-time Coordination Director. We hope you enjoy meeting them here:

Susan Ruderman, Ed.L., is a renowned author, a board member of OBOS, and a professional with more than 25 years of experience in fundraising, and institutional and government relations, non-profit, and human services and animal welfare organizations. Susan has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health. She has an MPH with a concentration in Maternal and Child Health, and her doctoral studies focused on HIV prevention among African American women.

Gina Wingood, MPH, PhD, is a professor at Harvard University’s School of Public Health. Gloria Feldt, MD, MSc, is a nationally known educator and women’s health advocate, and has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health.

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Nepali - Himal Shrestha, Amaasr Sathe

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Obong - Azuma Shasha, Amaasr Sathe

This booklet, developed in collaboration by Sanlaap Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta (Our Bodies, Ourselves) and Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta, is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Bengali - Amaasr Shasha, Amaasr Sathe

This booklet, developed in collaboration by Sanlaap Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta (Our Bodies, Ourselves) and Aamaar Shastha, Aamaar Satta, is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Meet the Newest Members of OBOS

OBOS kicked off spring with some new growth of its own. We are so pleased to welcome three new board members and a part-time Coordination Director. We hope you enjoy meeting them here:

Susan Ruderman, Ed.L., is a renowned author, a board member of OBOS, and a professional with more than 25 years of experience in fundraising, and institutional and government relations, non-profit, and human services and animal welfare organizations. Susan has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health. She has an MPH with a concentration in Maternal and Child Health, and her doctoral studies focused on HIV prevention among African American women.

Gina Wingood, MPH, PhD, is a professor at Harvard University’s School of Public Health. Gloria Feldt, MD, MSc, is a nationally known educator and women’s health advocate, and has been focused on women’s reproductive and sexual health.

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.

Nepali - Himal Shrestha, Amaasr Sathe

Our Bodies, Ourselves Outreach team is proud to showcase three new OBOS-based texts that our loyal friends and supporters recently joined the initiative to print these texts in their own language.
Our Bodies, Our Votes

The new edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves continues to draw even more women to the publishing world it helped create. As new editions of the book are published around the world, reaching audiences in a dozen languages, it is clear that, as a result, many young women grow up exposed to more information about female, gender, identity and sexual orientation, and the politics of women's bodies.

In the coming weeks, OBOS will distribute a letter, co-signed by our partners, intended for institutions interested in making Our Bodies, Ourselves available to students. You can reach us at OurBodiesOurVotes.com or use an Our Bodies, Our Votes graphic as your banner. We hope to announce online access to excerpts from the new edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves.

now available Online!
resources based on Our Bodies, Ourselves in 3 New Languages

Our Bodies, Our Votes campaign (continued from page 1)

Get your bumper sticker! Stick it and click it!

Our Bodies, Ourselves Global Initiative is proud to announce these three new conceptual adaptations of Our Bodies, Ourselves Public Health textbooks. Visit our website to view the booklets, learn more about the Global Initiative, and let us know which colleges and universities you would like to see receive the Our Bodies, Ourselves Global Initiative kits.

Alara - Mme Laura Keynuma (Women and Their Bodies)

The first book of its kind in Burundian and a unique resource in the wider Arab-speaking world, Alara - Mme Laura Keynuma boldly addresses issues often silenced and shunned in African society. In a courageous outreach initiative, Palestinian community health workers are using its content in workshops across the country. The book and related online tools were created by Women and Their Bodies, a collaboration of Jewish and Palestinian women living in Israel. To also be an integral part of the new IT initiative, shortly we hope to announce online access to excerpts from the new edition of Alara - Mme Laura Keynuma.

Bengali - Aamar Shastra, Aamar Sattra My Health, My Self

This book, developed in collaboration by Sattra in India and Manos in the United States, focuses on sexual and self-care. Coordinators are using the booklet as part of their outreach to 20,000 women and girls, and drawing upon an extensive grassroots and institutional network of NGOs, school libraries, village councils, and women health providers and educators.

Nepali - Hamro Sharir, Hamro Ho
in Our Health, Our Bodies, Our Vote

Our Bodies, Ourselves launches new Our Bodies, Our Votes campaign (continued from page 1)

OurBodiesOurVotes.com!

Visit OurBodiesOurVotes.com for more information, and please spread the word about this campaign!

Meet the Newest Members of OBOS

OBOS kicked off spring with some new growth of its own. We are so pleased to welcome three new Board Members and a part-time Development Coordinator. We hope you enjoy meeting them:

Susan Ruderman, MD, is a renowned obstetrician/gynecologist, research scientist, advocate and investor professional with more than 30 years of experience in fundraising and institutional and organizational development. Susan has focused on women's health and reproductive health organizations. Susan has a wide-ranging network of professional and personal contacts with whom she has worked to promote access to safe abortion and reproductive rights.

David M. Ton, PhD, and President Emeritus of the Milken Memorial Fund, joined the Board due to his long-time advocacy for the work of OBOS and its Executive Director, Judy Norsigian. Dan is a well known investor, philanthropist, and civic leader with a history of giving to local and national initiatives that tackle pressing social issues. Dan has played a key role in creating the Washington Families Coalition and treated healthcare policy advisor, author and public health expert, Gina Wingood, MPH,ScD, and Susan Ruderman's daughter. OBOS effectively carries out an ongoing theme of its own – the importance of evidence-based research and real world evidence to guide policy and practice.

Welcome aboard!
Mandating medically unnecessary and permitting doctors to withhold vital clinical practice.

Regarding conflicts of interest in education, research and reproductive health. Our domestic and international partnerships continue to grow as we seek greater collaboration with others, to advocate for public policies that enhance reproductive health and justice for women and girls.

Since we are a small, well-respected organization, we identify a select number of policy initiatives each year that we believe need targeted action. We also continue to be involved with issues related to reproductive justice and improved policies on both local and global levels.

Recent radio and TV interviews (ranging from Fox News to Al-Jazeera) have focused on sexuality and body image, access to contraception and abortion, and the engagement of low-income women in commercial surrogacy and the role of online activism.

In addition, OBOS colleagues who work closely with us to substantially expand our impact.

OBOS books, website, blog, newsletters, media outlets, public speaking, and use of social media all provide direct avenues for disseminating accurate information and for engaging more actively committed to sexual and reproductive health. Our domestic and international partnerships continue to grow as we seek greater reproductive justice and improved policies on both local and global levels.

Recent radio and TV interviews (ranging from Fox News to Al-Jazeera) have focused on sexuality and body image, access to contraception and abortion, and the engagement of low-income women in commercial surrogacy and the role of online activism.

In addition, OBOS colleagues who work closely with us to substantially expand our impact.

OBOS books, website, blog, newsletters, media outlets, public speaking, and use of social media all provide direct avenues for disseminating accurate information and for engaging more actively committed to sexual and reproductive health. Our domestic and international partnerships continue to grow as we seek greater reproductive justice and improved policies on both local and global levels.

Recent radio and TV interviews (ranging from Fox News to Al-Jazeera) have focused on sexuality and body image, access to contraception and abortion, and the engagement of low-income women in commercial surrogacy and the role of online activism.

In addition, OBOS colleagues who work closely with us to substantially expand our impact.

OBOS books, website, blog, newsletters, media outlets, public speaking, and use of social media all provide direct avenues for disseminating accurate information and for engaging more actively committed to sexual and reproductive health. Our domestic and international partnerships continue to grow as we seek greater reproductive justice and improved policies on both local and global levels.

Recent radio and TV interviews (ranging from Fox News to Al-Jazeera) have focused on sexuality and body image, access to contraception and abortion, and the engagement of low-income women in commercial surrogacy and the role of online activism.

In addition, OBOS colleagues who work closely with us to substantially expand our impact.

OBOS books, website, blog, newsletters, media outlets, public speaking, and use of social media all provide direct avenues for disseminating accurate information and for engaging more actively committed to sexual and reproductive health. Our domestic and international partnerships continue to grow as we seek greater reproductive justice and improved policies on both local and global levels.

Recent radio and TV interviews (ranging from Fox News to Al-Jazeera) have focused on sexuality and body image, access to contraception and abortion, and the engagement of low-income women in commercial surrogacy and the role of online activism.

In addition, OBOS colleagues who work closely with us to substantially expand our impact.

OBOS books, website, blog, newsletters, media outlets, public speaking, and use of social media all provide direct avenues for disseminating accurate information and for engaging more actively committed to sexual and reproductive health. Our domestic and international partnerships continue to grow as we seek greater reproductive justice and improved policies on both local and global levels.

Recent radio and TV interviews (ranging from Fox News to Al-Jazeera) have focused on sexuality and body image, access to contraception and abortion, and the engagement of low-income women in commercial surrogacy and the role of online activism.

In addition, OBOS colleagues who work closely with us to substantially expand our impact.

OBOS books, website, blog, newsletters, media outlets, public speaking, and use of social media all provide direct avenues for disseminating accurate information and for engaging more actively committed to sexual and reproductive health. Our domestic and international partnerships continue to grow as we seek greater reproductive justice and improved policies on both local and global levels.
Looking for a Way to Show Support for Reproductive Health?...Make it a Party!

Frustrated by the escalating "war on women?" Wondering how to get involved as you seek to protect women's reproductive health? We've got a plan for you: Consider hosting an Our Bodies Ourselves house party!

We can provide engaging and informative speakers (including OBOS Executive Director Judy Norsigian, plus friends, party favors with an educational theme, "Our Bodies, Our Votes," bumper stickers and informational handouts that will keep you and your friends up to date on key health policy issues. We can also make accessible copies of the new edition of Our Bodies, Ourselves available to your guests for a donation of $10 or more (make these great gifts!). It's a fun and easy way to support OBOS, and introduce your friends to a cause you're passionate about. All you need to do is send a few referrals, work with us to approve an invitation that meets your needs, and provide a list of guests. We'll send the e-vites, if you'd like.

Want to learn more? Contact Anne Keliher, our Development Coordinator, to discuss hosting a house party or other fundraising idea. Wild to hear your suggestions? You can reach Anne at Keliher@bwhbc.org.